

Spiritual Awareness

is accessible to everyone
of any religion or none,
and no one person
and no one faith
has the final revelation
or monopoly of truth.
Such awareness may be expressed in many different ways.
We delight in this diversity.

QUAKER UNIVERSALIST GROUP

Your invitation to join us

The Quaker Universalist Group is an informal group within the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) in Great Britain

The Quaker Universalist Group aims to

- provide a forum where we can explore and learn more about our own and other people's spiritual awareness, with openness, tolerance and compassion, and without censure
- uphold and encourage one another in our Universalist approach to the spiritual life, including supporting those Quakers who may feel isolated in their Meetings because of their views on spiritual matters
- encourage Quakers in their understanding of the wide range of beliefs and views in the world concerning spiritual awareness and spiritual practices
- be a resource to the Religious Society of Friends in exploring and debating the different and sometimes contentious views about spiritual matters that exist within it
- reach out to the many seekers beyond the Society of Friends and join with other Universalists around the world so that together we may deepen our spiritual practice, in whatever form that takes.

To carry out our aims, we

- hold an annual conference
- publish a journal, Universalist, three times a year
- publish books and pamphlets
- publish an e-newsletter
- encourage and support local Universalist groups
- advertise within the wider Quaker community so that those of a like approach know that we can offer support
- liaise with other groups with similar aims
- use social media to share insights and invite debate
- manage a website, <http://qug.org.uk/>

Membership

If you become a member you will

- support an exciting development within Quakerism in our increasingly globalised but fragmented world
- receive our journal Universalist free, three times per year
- receive the e-newsletter
- be put in contact with other members, e.g. in your own locality.

As a new member you will

- receive two free QUG pamphlets of your own choice.

You do not have to be a Quaker or a member of QUG to join in our activities, purchase Universalist or receive the newsletter.
